Thiébaud Chagué

4 March - 30 April

Wood Firing in action

Thursday 30th afternoon through 31 March midnight

Join us anytime over the two days to witness the firing of Thiébaud Chagué's sculpture in a 6 metre high wood-fired kiln.

Bars will be open from 6pm and the restaurant from 6:30pm on both days. The firing will look spectacular after dark. Book restaurant here.

Abstract Ceramics

Ceramic work selected in partnership with Martin Smith, Professor Emeritus of Ceramic at Royal College of Art who has a solo show in our London gallery. The exhibition will introduce work by Natasha Daintry, Nicholas Lees and James Rigler. All of the participating artists have been taught by Smith at the Royal College of Art.

Sandrine Bringard

Splash!

French ceramicist Sandrine Bringard's witty, surreal sculptures recall a breadth of influences, ranging from the dreamlike worlds of René Magritte and Frida Kahlo to the solid classicism of Auguste Rodin.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are delighted to confirm Alun Graves as a guest speaker of our Ceramics Symposium and the launch of his new book on Saturday 1 April.

Alun Graves is Senior Curator, Ceramics and Glass 1900-now, in the Department of Decorative Art and Sculpture at the V&A.

Making Introductions

RELEASED THIS WEEK

Tom Waugh

Watch film

duration: 4:54 minutes

With a background in classical stone sculpture, Tom Waugh uses traditional materials and techniques to create contemporary works of art. Stone and marble sculptures, carved in minute detail, depict waste objects, discarded in the wake of human consumption.
